Title: Drakov's Journal

Author: Drakov

My Master

This journal was found on one of our controllers. It seems he has lost
faith in you. Know that he has been dealth with and will never again speak
ill of you or our cause.
          -Galzon

We have completted
construction of the
devices needed to build the clockwork
overseers and minions
as per the request of the Master. The
gargoyles have been most useful and their knowledge of the
techniques for the construction of these creatures will serve
us well.

I am not one to
criticize the Master,
but I believe he may have erred in his decision to destroy
the wingless ones.
Already our forces
are weakened by the constant attacks of the humans Their strength and unquestioning compliance would have made them very useful in the fight against the humans. But the Master felt their presence to be an annoyance and a distraction to the winged ones. It was not difficult at all to remove them from this world. But now I fear without more allies, willing or not, we stand little chance of defeating the foul humans from our lands. Perhaps if the Master had shown a little mercy and forsight we would not be in such dire peril.
